CHALLENGES FACED

- Limited number of moderators: Only three major games were played, as there were not enough volunteers or coordinators to oversee all planned activities.
- Time constraints: Since the event started after Mass, some families had to leave early, reducing participation in the later activities and most left before getting a chance to play any games despite being on the queue.
- Budget limitations: Some planned materials had to be dropped due to insufficient funds.

RECOMMENDATION

- Early recruitment of volunteers and game moderators, to allow for smoother coordination and full implementation of the game lineup.
- More structured time management, to ensure all activities are completed before families begin to leave.
- Larger fundraising efforts or sponsorship drives to expand the range of materials distributed.
- Printed schedules or announcements to better inform parents and students about activities.

CONCLUSION

Despite the financial pressure we able to pull through to make the event a success and the feedbacks gotten from various parents after was a testament to it, the children really had fun and it would be one to talk about for times to come. With proper support and dedication, we can do better next time.

The organizing team is grateful to all supporters and contributors who made the event possible. With the lessons learned and recommendations in place, future editions are expected to be even more inclusive, well-coordinated, and resourceful.
